Presents

Blue Ribbon Art Camp 2017

Visual arts include creative art forms such as drawing, painting, printmaking, sculpture, clay modelling, etc. These art forms are also powerful media through which we can communicate information about rare diseases and generate awareness not only about the diseases, but also about the trials and tribulations of rare disease patients. Art is a healing tool through which people can convey and communicate their thoughts, emotions and experiences. For adults and children with rare diseases, art can serve as a therapeutic medium for expressing their struggles and frustrations while dealing with their diseases and also help with their emotional and psychological healing.

Blue Ribbon Art Camp 2017 has been designed as a patient-centric creative and therapeutic activity for 30 children and young adults (aged 10-20) with rare diseases to explore art and express their lived experiences of their disease. Chief Guest Smt. Ranjana Ramchander is a talented painter and also the co-founder of Hemophilia Society, Bangalore Chapter. Artist Bharath V is a talented young visual artist who enjoys facilitating art camps for young children. He will be supported by the Autism and Rare Disease Awareness Generation (ARDA) programme artists and designers at IIACD who have organized workshops for children and young adults and are sensitized to the spectrum of differences in the human body and invisible disabilities faced by rare disease patients.
